WILLIS GRANGER.

The young romantic actor, will appear as the star in "Gypsy Jack," which will be seen for the first time in this city at the Grand on Friday night. It is a rousing story of life and adventures among Gypsies, those very picturesque nomads, whose presence always lends a romantic element to a drama. The play treats with the story of "Gypsy Jack," stolen when a child by the Gypsies, who later on revealed to him that he is the son of a wealthy man. Many exciting episodes are introduced in the struggle of the Gypsy for recognition as the heir to the property left by the death of Sir John Dexter, and the result is a play of unusual interest and action. There will be many fine stage pictures, and the play is in the hands of a capable company.

Prices, 25c, 35c, 50c and 75c. Seats at Borland's, Wednesday.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

—On account of her many sided personality and the wide scope of her versatility, Mrs LeMoyne is said to be harder to fit with a suitable character than any other actress on the American stage. In her previous roles in "The Moth and the Flame," "Catherine," "The Greatest Thing in the World" and the First Duchess of Marl-poroufil." Mrs. LeMoyne scored unquestioned success, but despite that fact the closest friends asserted that the most congenial part was yet to be written for her,

Mr. Glen MacDonough, the well known playwrigh, was assigned this task for this season, and it is stated that he has performed the work in a highly satisfactory manner. The character of Mrs. Clinton in "Among Those Present," is a bright, sparkling leader of New York society who gets into difficulty through her tendency toward extravagance. The role is said to be of a humorous nature exactly fitted to Mrs. LeMoyne's rare talents as a comedienne. There are also reported to be some situations of oreathless interest which cause the audience to remember the play over night and talk about it to their neighbors the next day, The company which manager George H. Brennan has engaged to support Mrs. LeMoyne is said to be the strongest ever seen with her in any of her star-

This excellent attraction will be seen at the Grand, on Friday, Jan. 23d. The free list will be entirely suspended for this attraction.

Those who ventured out on Saturday night to see Tim Murphy and his excellent company were well repaid, for it certainly was one of the very best at tractions that has been seen at the Grand Opera House this season. Manager Porter is to be congratulated upon the class of attractions that he has been giving the Paris public. Mr. Murphy was the recipient of three curtain calls and made a speech after last act.

He found a mighty monster which Was snorting in a dell; Its driver gently swore at it And pumped it up as well; He took it for a mastodon, Too fat to travel far;

Instead of that it was a toy

They called a motor care 10000 He found a bloody battle-field Between two hunting packs; They said it was a football match-

He saw some doctors in a ward 2250 Conducting a P. M.; He fancied it might be a feast And wished to join with them.

He went into a lecture room And looked upon a shelf; He thought he saw a skeleton 90.801 And found it was himself.

While in a still suburban street He heard a German band. And killed them out of hand.

He went into a smart "at home," Where dames in conclave sit; But that was more than he could stand He perished in a fit. London Outlook

How are you getting on without Hope?" and Miss Terry, while appearing to cut currant bread very thin, gave him an x-ray glance.

"It's astonishing," said Max, leaning back among the pillows and stirring his tea, "how easily the bachelor habit returns." do? The situation is hopeless." "Nothing of the sort," said Miss Terry, with vigor. What if you have ceased to love your wife? You have still your life to live and she has hers. They must be lived apart, that's all. Tell Hope the truth." "Tell her?" gasped Max, and added, with sorrow, "Oh, no, I couldn't hurt herson Ishe loves me. I couldn't be such a brute."

Oh, don't be so considerate, Max You are not the only one who has been dreaming and is now awale. Hope does not love you. That's why she went away, by my advice." Max left soon after this bombshell his eyes a little thoughtful and awe struck, and Miss Terry looked hard at herself in the mirror. "Was I wise?" she asked.

His self-sufficiency was awful. Now for the next move."

This meant sending a letter to liope which ended with these words:

So you need not hesitate longer in telling him the truth. He will be glad to hear it. How good it is that neither of you will suffer, since both are so absolutely indifferent.

During the next week Max really passed to within greeting distance of pneumonia, but Hope's face bending over him with the old look in the eyes did more to turn the scales in his favor than even the doctor's skill.

One day in the beginning of convalescence Miss Terry, entering the studio unheard, was brought to a standstill by these low words from

A charming story of the late queen of England vouched for by Mr. A. F. Story, is told in the "Childhood of Queen Victoria." It is so consistent with the queen's known kindless of heart that it speaks for its own truth.

heart on buying a doll she had seen in a shop window; but her mother, the duchess of Kent, would not let her buy it until her next allowance of pocket-money was due. At last the day came, and the princess hurried to the shop, paid over the six bright shillings and got the ong-coveted doll.

On coming out of the shop with her treasure in her arms, the princess encountered a wretchedly miserable tramp, who plucked up courage enough to ask for help. The princess hesitated a moment; then, realizing that she no longer had any noney left for the man, she returned o the shopkeeper and gave him back the doll. He gave her the six shillngs, promising also to keep the doll for her for a few days.

Then the little lady hurried out of the shop and thrust the whole of the money into the hands of the beggar.

It is said that Home Tooke, who excelled in that duel-like controversy exhibited by two disputants when pitted against each other with only the breadth of a managany board between them, was exceedingly quick and sharp at retort. When he made his most deadly thrusts, says the Saturday Evening Post, it was with a smiling countenance, and willout seeming effort of emotion.

Replying to a man who contended that only land owners should be allowed to vote at elections, he said:

Keep Up The Good Work.

JOHN HILL, colored, was arrested Saturday, at Hutchison Station on the charge of seduction. The warrant was sworn out against him by T. A. Cook, agent of the Humane Society, of Lexington, who found his victim, a little girl thirteen years of age in charge of her aunt on Lottie street, in that city. She told such a revolting story of mistreatment at the hands of Hill that immediate action was taken to place him in custody. When arrested he made no resistance and said he had been expecting it for some time.

Mull's Grape Tonic Cures Constipation. When the sewer of a city becomes stopped up, the refuse backs into the streets where it decays and rots, spreading disease-creating germs throughout the entire city.

An epidemic of sickness follows. It is the same way when the bowels fail to work.
The undigested food backs into the system and there it rots and decays. From this festering mass the blood saps up all the disease germs, and at every heart beat carries them to every tissue, just as the water works of a city forces impure water into every house. The only way to cure a condition like this is to cure the constipation. Pills and the ordinary cathartics will do no good.

MULL'S GRAPE TONIC is a crushed fruit tonic-laxative which permanently cures the affliction. The tonic properties contained in the grape

TWILIGHT IN IRELAND.

It Is Different From That Seen In Any Other Country.

The interior of a typical Irish cabin is a sorry sight. The floor is of stone, uncovered except for a few rag mats. The furniture is of the poorest, and sometimes it is homemade; tables improvised from boxes, chairs from barrels, and the beds more like stalls for cattle, with their straw mattresses and bundle of rags for clothing. A slow, dull fire of peat gives a cheerless warmth to the room. What few dishes there are belonging to the family are arranged on the mantelpiece. Strips of bacon, dried cod and therbs hang from the ceiling.

After a frugal meal Pat will take his evening promenade. It is between supper time and going to bed that the Irish most enjoy themselves. An Irish twilight is different from any other; indeed, it is without a rival. It seems as if there the sun were loath to set, casting its rays over the Emerald Isle many hours after it had disappeared elsewhere. In that delicious moment, just before it finds its final resting place for the night, it is most enchanting. Over everything is an unspeakable spell of peace and quiet, and a warm glow casts into shadow unsightly objects and surrounds them with a mystic halo of golden light. It radiates into the hearts of Ireland's humblest inhabitagets, and they sally forth, rich and poor alike, mingling in a throng of living, moving humanity,

London Theaters of Long Ago.

A writer in London Truth says that in the early part of the eighteenth century the London theaters opened at 6 o'clock, and as it was therefore difficult for playgoers to arrive punctually and obtain seats many of them sent footmen or hired men from the streets to secure places for them. These sat in the seats until those who had sent them came, and the custom prevailed until 1766, when the system now in force was adopted. "A footman used to be sent early to take places and keep them by the simple but effectual plan of sitting on them till his masters and mistresses arrived. Such a practice would now be considered an intolerable nuisance, but people in those days were much less particular, and appear to have thought nothing of sitting for an act or two cheek by jowl with a flunky or, worse, with a vagabond picked in the State will be sold. ## Japan Once Joined to China.

Japan consists of a group of "festoon islands," forming a long curve, with its concavity toward the mainland, and many of their peculiarities are due to their upheaval by subterranean forces, 1 land, are scientifically classified as "recent continental islands." ## Queer Japanese Custom.

In some villages in Japan robbers are tried and convicted by ballot. Weenever a robbery is committed the ruler population and requests them to write to win. on a slip of paper the name of the person they suspect as having committed the crime. The one receiving the largest number of ballots is declared duly "elected" and is accordingly hanged. This system, like all others, has its peculiar advantages. It insures the punishment of somebody for every robbery committed, whereas under the system in vogue in most civilized countries in nine cases out of ten no punishment is inflicted on anybody for the crime. Of course they may not "elect" the guilty person, but dispose of some other character equally bad.

Old Violins.

The old time viol was the first instrument of its kind and furnished the plan for the modern violin, which, however, is 700 years old. It is said that Charles II. introduced it into England. One of the finest makers of violins was Stradivarius of Cremona, who existed in the early part of the eighteenth century. Violins made by him are worth thousands of dollars now and are highly esteemed by collectors and perform-
